Building a safer, healthier and adequate housing for flood victims and other poor families in Chikwawa, Malawi.

Missio Village housing project: Construction of dwelling houses for flood victims and other poor families in Chikwawa, Malawi.

Recently, Missio has been approached with the commissioning of a new concept: a pilot project related to the construction of dwelling house for flood victims in Malawi and other poor families that are always in danger during rainy seasons.

In early March 2019, the floods in Malawi resulted in serious devastation of dwelling houses of many people and nearly 60 people died due to the falls. Walls of the majority of locals' muddy houses were swept by the running water of the floods, leaving many people homeless seeking shelter in schools and churches. Some of these people have been relocated to up lands and be given land to build houses. Most of them lost all their property (farm land, crops, food and livestock) and need support to build their houses and start improving their livelihoods so that they can live a dignified life.

Missio intends to help these families and invest in a Missio Village housing project in Malawi. The pilot project is phased in different stages over five years; building a maximum of four houses per year and providing agricultural means for locals. At the end of the five years, the families will benefit from a small Missio Village of twenty houses with five boreholes in the Missio Village. The ultimate aim is to provide dignified shelter for the twenty families and provide agricultural means for their livelihoods through provision of farm inputs for winter farming and for animal farming. Following the successful completion of the pilot study, which will approx. cost €250,000, the project can also be mirrored and implemented in other Dioceses, namely Karonga, Dedza, Mangochi, Lilongwe, Zomba and Blantyre that equally have the same problem of houses.

More information will be given during Missio Malta's marathon Hope#missiofest happening on Saturday 13th March on all local t.v. stations between noon and midnight, where your organization can really make a difference in the lives of locals in Malawi. Every donation is very much appreciated and on behalf of the locals affected by the flooding, we thank you in advance.
